

Our Privacy Policy

We value your privacy and want to make sure you (the Client) are aware of your options to control what information about you is gathered by Barclay Educational Services and how this information is used.

In order to deliver our services, Barclay must collect, use and disclose personal information about you, the Client. We will require basic information such as the Client's name(s) and contact information as well as detailed information about the Client's academic background and other personal matters relevant to the delivery of the services in an effective manner.

In cases where information about The Client's Academic Background is collected, this information is for information and guidance purposes only. It will not be distributed to any academic institutions or other third parties without consent of The Client.

We've recently made updates to our Privacy Policy to increase transparency and comply with the European Union's General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). We encourage you to read the new GDPR policy in full, but here are some highlights of what's changed for us:

- We have added information to website outlining our Privacy Policy about the types of data that we collect, the ways in which we use it, and the measures we take to keep your data safe;
- We have created new ways for Clients to manage their privacy and control what information we send to them

The updates to our policies are in effect as of May 25, 2018.

Barclay requires the Client's authorization and consent to disclose the personal information provided by the Client to academic institutions and, if required, third party service providers. By executing this Agreement, the Client hereby provides such authorization and consent.

Barclay will take all the reasonable measures to secure the personal information provided by the Client and to ensure that it is used only for the intended purposes as set out above.

Barclay requires the Client's consent to communicate via email. By executing this agreement, The Client agrees that we may contact you with information, updates, and opportunities.
